

U.S. Diplomatic History Resources Index

<http://www.scf.usc.edu/~sarantak/stuff.html>

U.S. foreign policy historians will gladly use this site to link up to an almost unending and unbelievably long list of historical archives and papers.

U.S. Diplomatic History Resources Index provides more references than can be listed here but examples range from the papers of J. William Fulbright and presidential libraries to documents on the Cuban Missile crisis, Vietnam, and Hiroshima to books.

While the listings can be inundating at times, the sources are easily linked and the payoff is extraordinary. —LA
